Zeitschrift für Physikalische Chemie covers the main developments in physical chemistry with emphasis on experimental research and their theoretical interpretation. It represents a combination of reaction kinetics and spectroscopy, surface research and electrochemistry, thermodynamics and structure analysis of matter in its various conditions following these principles:

- accurate quantitative descriptions of chemical processes
- modern developments of mechanisms and mathematical models
- a combination of chemical-material experience and physical measurement methodology
- contributions of a broad interest and of mainly experimental character
- an ideal forum for new ideas and particular needs
- a combination of theoretical and experimental research.
